

So many beautiful things – Françoise Hardy

Even if I have to let go of your hand without being able to say "see you tomorrow"
We will always be close, even if I have to go further away
Burn bridges, change trains, love is stronger than sorrow
The love that makes our hearts beat will transcend this pain
Turn lead into gold, you still have so many beautiful things to enjoy
You will see a rainbow forming at the end of the tunnel
And the lilacs in bloom, you have so many beautiful things ahead of you

Even if I watch from another shore
Whatever you do, whatever happens to you
I will be with you as before, even if you drift away
The state of grace, the living forces will return faster than you think
In the space that reunites the sky and the earth
Hides the greatest of mysteries
Like the mist veiling the dawn
There are so many beautiful things you do not know
Faith that breaks down mountains, the white light in your soul
Think about it when you fall asleep, love is stronger than death
In the time that reunites the sky and the earth hides the most beautiful of mysteries
Think about it when you fall asleep.
